Winners Receive Prizes at 4-H Wheat Club Achievement Day

Irma 4H Wheat Club held a very successful Achievement Day on November 14 in the lunchroom of the school. 19 samples were exhibited and they were all well prepared.

After judging the samples Mr. Jeffries, Asst. D.A. of Vermilion praised the members for their work and said he had not been able to find any weeds or other cereal grains in the samples. The three best samples will be represented at the Calgary 4H Seed Competition later on.

Mr. S. Duncan, District Agriculturist of Wainwright, conducted a grain judging contest among the members. Proceedings broke off about 5:15 p.m. and at 6:30 a banquet was held in the basement of the United Church. The banquet was sponsored by the Irma Board of Trade, who paid for all the 4H Club members and officials. About 24 parents and well wishers were at the banquet. The banquet was catered by the Ladies of the Royal Purple who served a really delicious meal.

The president of the Club, Harold Dootson, acted as Master of Ceremonies, and after wishing everyone welcome and thanking the Board of Trade for the banquet, called on the following speakers:

Representative of the Board of Trade, Ole Nissen. Toast to the Ladies of the Royal Purple, Jas. Jackson, representative of Alberta Wheat Pool, District Agriculturist Mr. S. Duncan and Club Leader Ole Nissen.

Mr. Jackson, when speaking on behalf of the Alberta Wheat Pool, presented Jimmy Allen with a pocket book, their prize for the best plot.

Mr. Duncan announced the list of prize winners and Mr. Nissen gave a short outline of the Club activities in the past season. The future will depend much on the members themselves. The regular Club meetings will be continued each first Monday of the month except January, when some other date will be chosen. The December meeting will be held at the Legion Hall. Any boy or girl between the ages of 12 and 21 who wishes to become a member and can promise to do his very utmost to attend the meetings, and keep a nice plot complete with a black border during the growing season, is welcome to join, but should do so before February 1 if possible.

Wedding Bells

MARKS — BRUHAUG

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the Irma United Church on November 20 at 2 p.m. when Olga, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Bruhaug of Jarow became the bride of Victor Leo Marks, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Marks of Edmonton. Rev. H. W. Inglis officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a floor length white satin gown. The fitted bodice was fashioned with a high neck and lily-point sleeves while the full skirt which swept into a cathedral train had insets of chantilly lace in panel effect. Her veil of illusion net misted softly from the bride's rounded coronet of lace and net embroidered with seed pearls and sequins. She carried a bouquet of Tallinn roses.

Mrs. W. R. Meekins, sister of the bride, was matron of honor in a floor length gown of blossom pink crepe.

The bridesmaids, both of whom had been the bride's classmates at the St. Joseph General Hospital, Vegreville, Miss Valerie Arthurs and Miss Doris Urkow wore floor length bolero type gowns of net over taffeta in shades of Nile green and aqua.

Shirleyanne Meekins, niece of the bride, dressed in a floor length turquoise blue nylon dress, was flower girl.

Our Trip to the Old Country

We left Fleetwood, where one may buy the best fish and chips at all England, and returned to the Lake District.

It was now early July and the weather had turned very warm and dry. The bluebells and campion were gone from the woods, but the hedges were full of wild roses while honeysuckle climbed up and made scented pillars of the trees along the lanes.

Once we came on a place in a wood where the trees had been felled and giant foglows by the thousands covered the hillsides. Most of them 4 feet tall and full of blossom.

There were strawberries, gooseberries, black, white and red currants in the gardens and the garden roses were now in full bloom.

On July 18 we left the north of England by car as far as Shrewsbury and there took a train to London via Birmingham, Banbury, etc.

During our stay in the south of England, we were in London briefly four or five times. These are some of the things which came to mind. Forests of chimney tops—a pavement artist at work at the foot of the steps leading to the national art gallery. St. Paul's rising a bit shabby but proud and stately among the bomb damage which extends all around. Fire weed as we have growing in Canada after a disaster, also grows over the bombed out ruins.

Trafalgar Square with fountains playing and pigeons fluttering to be fed while Nelson and his guardian lions watch serenely and seem to quite approve.

A fleeting glimpse of Buckingham Palace. Double deck bus rides down Park Lane, The Strand, Hyde Park Corner, etc.

Arch, Charing Cross and Fleet Street with the names of famous newspapers such as "The Daily Telegraph," "Manchester Guardian," "The Yorkshire Post" and of course "The Times." Didn't notice the word Irma in front of it though.

We saw the famous horse guards outside Whitehall, also the Cenotaph. Coming to the Houses of Parliament we entered a large arched doorway and found it was the famous Westminster Hall where history has been made for hundreds of years and where the body of a British sovereign lies in state before a royal funeral.

Westminster Abbey was crowded and it was difficult to see all we wanted. The Coronation Chair we found. It was securely guarded by iron railings. No one is going to run off with the stone of Seone again in a hurry! The Unknown Soldier's grave, is easy to find, so was the Pyx Chapel but the most astonishing find in the Abbey (to us) was Miss Kathleen Shannon, formerly of Mannville, who was on a world tour and just happened to meet us face to face there.

We travelled on the underground a lot when going from one railway station to another and found that London has a large, noisy, dirty "basement" but the organization of it is amazing!

We left London for White-stable, Kent. It is a sea side town on the Thames estuary and is famous for its oysters and for being the nearest watering (sea-side town) place to London. It is also the birthplace of your local scribe but will never be famous on that account.

Celebrate Golden Wedding Anniversary

Residents of Alberta since 1925, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Miskimmin of Wainwright, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Friday, November 19 with an "At Home" to all their friends and neighbors held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Carter.

This popular "young couple," Hugh Miskimmin of Donaghue, County Down, and Eschell Jordan of Loughgal, County Down Ireland, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony, November 18, 1905 in the Presbyterian Church, Newtonards, Ireland.

Twenty years later they, with their family of three girls, Lillian, Mollie and Essie, came to Canada locating at Irma, Alberta where they lived one year.

They then moved to a farm in the Auburndale district, north of Wainwright, where they carried on farming operations until the year 1947 when they retired from the farm and moved to their present place of residence in the Town of Wainwright.

Ninety some relatives, friends and neighbors signed the guest book during the afternoon and evening bringing good wishes and gifts which included a purse from their host of friends, both in Wainwright and Auburndale, a tin-light from the three daughters, a gift from the United Church W.A., the L.O.B.A. and numerous others.

The hostess was assisted by the daughters and grand-daughters of the honored guests. The rooms looked festive with bouquets of bronze and gold chrysanthemums, wedding bells and gold and white streamers.

The three-tiered cake centred the table and was flanked by white tapered in golden candle holders.

Out of town guests to this happy event were the couple's three daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Barber (Mollie) and family of Innisfree, Mr. Martin Lovig (Essie) and family of Calgary, Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Fenton (Mollie) and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. ST. MARY'S CHURCH NOTES

Service of Evensong will be held in St. Mary's Church on Sunday, November 27 at 2 p.m.

United Church 45th Anniversary

The Irma United Church celebrated its 45th anniversary here on November 20 and 21st. This was a very enjoyable occasion, especially so because the Rev. J. R. Geeson, former pastor of the Irma charge from 1920 to 1935, was the guest speaker.

At the church service on Sunday morning, Mr. Geeson spoke from 1 Samuel 25, "Bound in the bundle of life with the Lord thy God."

The United Church choir gave two fine anthems and the service closed after the congregation sang "The Church's One Foundation is Jesus Christ Her Lord."

On Monday evening the Anniversary Supper was held in the basement. This was in charge of the Junior W.A. group and was, as always, a truly beautiful and delicious meal, wonderfully served and organized. A large number of folk attended and seemed to thoroughly enjoy themselves.

Following the supper a program was held in the church with Rev. H. W. Inglis in the chair. There were two anthems by the choir. A song and encore by the three Sampson sisters, an accordion solo and encore by Wallace Dunbar, piano solo and encore by Mrs. A. D. Glasgow and a vocal duet "The Holy City" by Mrs. Simmerman and Dorcen, and a reading by Mrs. J. C. McLean. Mr. Inglis then called upon Mr. Geeson for his message, which was entitled "The Church's Place in the world of today."

Mr. Geeson first recalled some interesting and amusing incidents of life in depression days at Irma and told a good story for the many children who all on to tell the older folk of the mission of the church in this changing world and how the Christians here must be in this world but not of it if their lives are to really count and the church gain in power of the spirit. The gathering closed by all singing "Blest Be The Tie That Binds."

Woman coachman Parisian tradition

Rachel Dorange, of Paris, the "woman coachman", belongs to the Champs Elysees as much as the chestnut trees and the sidewalk cafes.

This woman with her fiery red hair and bright smile is more than a tradition. She is literally a horse and carriage. She is a small hackney coach, carries eightseers along the boulevards of Paris.

Although comparatively young in years, Mademoiselle Dorange's coach recalls a past era when leisure was not a luxury and an afternoon drive was a major diversion.

Two other women have capitalized on Rachel Dorange's popularity and followed her lead, but Rachel was the first woman to drive a horse carriage in Paris.

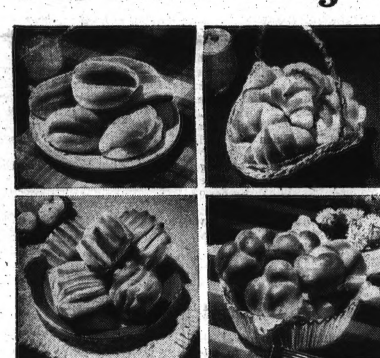

Rachel's carriage is to be found most days at lunch time around the Rond Point de Champs Elysees. If this spot is sometimes vacant, it merely implies that Rachel has gone off on a trip.

Three years ago, Rachel made a trip to London with her horse and carriage, and was delighted when the Queen smiled at her in Hyde Park.

TRY AND STOP ME!
By BENNETT COPE

A garage owner appeared on his premises unexpectedly, and found his four mechanics squaking happily on the floor, playing poker with a pile of tools in front of them. "You haven't paid us in weeks," pointed out one of them, "no of course we have no money. We're playing for tools instead." And by the way, it's jacks to open."

A couple of fifteen-year girls from Hunter College found themselves inside the Museum of Art in New York (to escape a sudden shower). They paused before a glass case that contained a well-preserved Egyptian mummy. A display card at the mummy's head read "3335 B.C."

"Wow, is that square all hand-painted?" marvelled one of the Frosh. "Wonder what the 3335 B.C. stands for."

"Probably the license number of the car that cooked her," said her chum.

New Yorkers ice four freshmen
Four new players dot the lineup of the New York Rangers in the current N.H.L. season. The newcomers are Defenseman Milt Houghton, Center Bronco Horvath, Left wing Guy Gendron and Right wing Andy Hebenton. With the exception of Gendron, all the players are graduates of the Western Hockey League. Gendron, who stands 5' 8" and weighs 156, was with Providence Reds of the American League last year, while toiling with the Reds he scored 24 and assisted on 15 for 39 points.

Brooks Horvath boasts the finest scoring record of the Rangers newcomers. Last season he led the Western League scorers with 50 goals and assists for 110 points. He paced the Edmonton Flyers to the League championship and he finished the season 22 points ahead of Johnny Bucyk who finished second in the scoring race.

And Hebenton played with Victoria Cougars last year and he finished seventh in the W.H.L. scoring derby. He had 46 goals and 34 assists for 80 points. Hebenton and Horvath each weigh 180 pounds. Horvath stands six feet while Hebenton is 5' 7". Defenseman Houghton weighs 185, stands 6' 1" and was a stanchion of Johnny Bucyk for the Saskatoon Quakers last year.

NEW MATERIAL

Archaeologists find evidence pre-Roman town

The men who excite historians by unearthing evidence of the 800-year Roman occupation of Britain went one better in London recently and told of digging up remnants of an even older society.

Archaeologists are always uncovering relics of the Roman siege, but a leader of a recent expedition delighted Britain's large crop of historians by proving the existence of an organized community active before Julius Caesar's followers took over the country.

The pre-Roman town, inhabited by Celts, was sited near the present-day village of Silchester, on the Berkshire-Hampshire border 30 miles west of London.

The Romans began their domination in 55 B.C., but because of the difficulties of transportation, they did not settle the village until about 40 A.D. The Celts then fled the area and settled in Wales.

Excavations were made in a 45-foot-wide ditch, believed to have been a barrier in the community's defense system.

In the bottom of the ditch, under 10 feet of earth, archaeologists found hundreds of pieces of broken pots and vases.

"That was definite proof that the society existed before the Roman conquest," George Boon, of Reading Museum, said.

Boon's party will go back to the area next September and dig up more ditches and other places which might hold evidence of the hamlet or its residents.

"We might be able to locate some partial walls, weapons and valuables around the site. In the historical sense, you can say our discovery was extremely important. We hope soon to be able to get more articles of interest."

Wild oat problem for discussion Weed Control meet

REGINA.—The wild oat problem, one of the expensive ones for western farmers, will be discussed at length along with other timely weed problems, at the 8th Western Canadian Weed Control Conference to be held at the Hotel Saskatchewan, Regina, November 27th and 30th.

H. W. Leitch, superintendent, Regina experimental farm, will give a paper entitled, "Where do we stand on Wild Oat Control?" His talk will show together all the latest information available on wild oats control based on experiments conducted throughout western Canada over the past few years.

A summary of recommended methods of weed control, both cultural and chemical, will be given by Dr. R. T. Coupland, head of the department of plant ecology, University of Saskatchewan. Dr. Coupland's talk will be based on recommendations arising out of information to be reviewed prior to the conference by the Western Section of the National Weed Committee.

Something comparatively new in weed control, which may have real possibilities, is the use of disease organisms and insects. This subject will be dealt with by Dr. J. M. Smith, Insect Parasitology Laboratory, Belleville, Ontario. Research and experimentation carried out has shown that certain weeds may be controlled by these means, when chemical and cultural means are not feasible. Insects raised for the purpose have been employed in the control of a bad ragweed weed in British Columbia with some success.

R. E. McKenzie, chairman of the Weed Conference expressed the hope that as many farmers, weed inspectors and municipal officials as were able would attend the sessions. "Weed losses in western Canada alone come to $250 million dollars a year," he said, and information made available at the meetings should in some way help to cut down these serious losses."

AN EYE ON HIS PROGRESS

The physical and mental development of an infant should be followed carefully and records kept of his weight, growth and development. Regular weighing is important—he should gain about a pound and a half a month in his second to fourth months, and about a month for the next eight months.

SPECIAL MESSAGE TO CUSTOMERS OF THE B of M

HERE'S HOW

Your 2 Billion Dollars

OIL THE WHEELS OF PROGRESS

In a thousand ways, the money you have on deposit at the B of M is working for you and for Canada . . . creating new opportunities for Canadian enterprise and new jobs for Canadians in every calling.

Yes, in all fields of Canadian endeavour, your savings are helping finance projects large and small . . . supplying much of the money necessary for growth and expansion of our industry and commerce.

Let's take a look at the facts behind the figures in the B of M's annual report for 1955, and see how your money — in the form of loans and investments — oils the wheels of progress:

THE MONEY YOU DEPOSIT

At the end of the Bank's year, October 31, 1955, over two million Canadians had on deposit at the B of M the sum of $2,591,326,311 — the highest year-end total on record. Although much of this money belongs to institutions and business firms, more than half of these deposits represent the personal savings of Canadians in every walk of life . . . savings that are bringing benefits to you and to Canada.

THE MONEY WE LEND

The money you save at the B of M is helping to ensure our country's expansion and progress — in the form of loans to Canadian farmers, miners, fishermen, oil men, lumbermen and ranchers; to industrial and business enterprises; to Provincial and Municipal Governments; and to salaried people in all walks of life. As of October 31, B of M loans totalled $1,057,444,001 — the highest in the Bank's history. In untold ways, these dollars are contributing dynamically to the maintenance and improvement of our standard of living.

THE MONEY WE INVEST

At the close of the year, the B of M had $975,361,319 invested in high-grade government bonds and other public securities which have a ready market. This money is helping to finance government projects for the betterment of the country and the welfare of Canadians at large. Other securities held by the Bank — which include a diversified list of high-quality short-term industrial issues — bring total investments to $1,214,559,875.

News Roundup From Edmonton

By Ken Mason

EDMONTON—The big game hunting season has opened in Alberta, and officials of the game branch are conducting a campaign of public relations aimed at building friendship between hunters and wardens.

There's a good reason behind it, too. If hunters and game officers learn to become good friends and co-operate, conditions will be better for everyone. A hunter is mistaken if he thinks he has to sneak about like the top man on the RCMP most-wanted list and regard the game officer as a mortal enemy.

The game officer's work is directed toward assuring that there is always an abundance of game in Alberta's plains and forests, for the sportsman of this and future generations. And if hunters co-operate, the game warden's job is that much easier.

The public relations program is being carried out mainly through the big game checking stations throughout the province, where officials in charge exert a special effort to make a hit with hunters.

Sportsmen on their way out after big game are issued a cordial invitation to stop in at the station for the latest information on areas where game is abundant, and on the condition of roads for getting there. In return, the hunters are asked to check in on their way back and report what luck they had. It works both ways.

John Stelfox, government game biologist, explains it this way: "If the hunter can become acquainted with our game management problems through meeting game officials at the checking stations, he will become more conservation minded. And wherever problems arise during hunting, he will go immediately to a game official instead of shying away as if the officer were a cop waiting to prosecute him."

Hunters can actually be of great assistance to game officers. They see more game and cover more area than the officers can, and the information they provide can help game officials in developing the province's wildlife resources to assure future sport.

There are problems in wildlife management which must be solved if the game animal population is to flourish. Contrary to the belief of many, wildlife doesn't thrive if left to its own resources and not disturbed by man.

It may seem hard to believe, but there are actually more game animals in Alberta now than there were before the white man took over this part of the country. The population has increased through good management, but the problem is to keep it increasing, and combat conditions which could cause a decline.

In some ways, game animals such as elk and deer are their own worst enemies. For example when they are undisturbed, their population grows so large that the food supply is wiped out. As a result, the animals are forced to exist on food of poorer quality, which in turn lowers the general health of the animals.

A weakened condition makes the animals susceptible to disease, which kills many. Other weaker ones starve to death in the stiff competition for food with healthier members of the herd. Once the herd is thinned out this way, the supply of food plants can re-establish itself, but in the meantime undesirable vegetation has developed on the range, so it will never be able to support the animal population it did before.

Through good management, the large number of game animals lost to disease and starvation can just as easily be taken by hunters. Oil exploration roads are opening up vast new areas of the province, and the government game branch wants to make available to hunters the many big game animals in these areas.

The solution, according to Mr. Stelfox, is in range management. The food supply must be kept healthy and vigorous. Hunting pressure on the animals must be reduced so that the herds are culled continuously, in much the same way ranchers cull their

INFESTATION IN STORED GRAIN

Farmers are being urged to make periodic checks of their year-old grain bins, particularly for the Rusty Grain Beetle and the Grain Mite. Often a few simple steps will help to keep these insects under control.

Farmers who have storage problems of this nature, are advised to write to the Stored Products Insect Laboratory, Dominion Public Building, Winnipeg for information and guidance.

herds of cattle to obtain maximum returns.

If everyone co-operates, Alberta can continue to be a paradise for big game hunters indefinitely. Wildlife management is a relatively new science which has had to fight for recognition, and in Alberta game branch officials are making big strides. They deserve support from sportsmen.

Incidentally, the current big game season is shaping up as one of the best in recent years, according to all reports. The season was closed on deer and moose for the last two years, and hunters are finding them in great numbers. From reports received at checking stations to date, Alberta may even produce a record trophy head before the season is over.

PRICE RISE HITS ALBERTA PAPERS

VANCOUVER—A three percent boost in newspaper prices to Canadian and U.S. publishers was announced by M. J. Foley, president of Powell River Sales Co., Ltd.

Mr. Foley said the new price, effective November 15, would increase prices from $4 to $4.50 per ton. Basic price now is $121 in Canada and $126 in the U.S. Powell River supplies its newspaper, mainly to B.C., Alberta and U.S. users. It is the fourth Canadian paper company to raise its price in the last 10 days.

Grey Cup Curlers At the Coast

A $11,000 bonspiel is being held in Vancouver this week to finish Friday evening, just previous to the Grey Cup game between the Edmonton Eskimos and the Montreal Alouettes.

The spiel has drawn a large number of curlers from Alberta and all left last Friday from Edmonton on a special train.

Irma is represented by Len Loades, Keith McLaren, Albert Firkus and Neil MacMillan. Holden is there too, with Able Black, Helmer Olsen, B. Stambaugh and Don Stambaugh.

Billy Rose, 1946 Brier winner at Saskatoon, is with Arden Brown, of Vancouver, and Herb Coxford and Tom Magee of Edmonton.

Wainwright sent two doctors, Dr. J. E. Bradley and Dr. J. D. Wallace, who teamed up with Dr. Jack Lees and Dr. Hav MacLennan, of Edmonton.

The entry fee is $50 per rink. From reports received so far, the Alberta rinks are holding their own.

SAFE DRIVING DAY, DECEMBER 1st

OTTAWA—Each day six Canadians lose their lives on Canadian streets and highways.

Figures compiled by the Canadian Highway Safety Conference show that one Canadian dies every four hours as the result of a traffic accident. Every six minutes someone is injured.

Property damage runs to roughly $200 a minute all day long.

In face of these alarming figures the Canadian Highway Safety Conference is sponsoring Safe Driving Day throughout Canada. The Conference hopes to cut the tragic toll which amounts to a national disaster.

S-D Day, December 1, is timed to coincide with a similar drive in the United States, sponsored by the President's Action Committee for Safer Driving, W. M. V. Ash, chairman of the Canadian Highway Safety Conference said. "The joint drives are being backed by civic and political leaders on both sides of the border.

"To add impact to the campaign, the drive is being limited to one day, S-D, but will be preceded by 10 days of intensive promotion, advertising, and driver and pedestrian education," Mr. Ash said.

"The result, it is hoped, will be a drastic cut in the number of accidents on December 1. It will then be up to the individual to show that every day can be a S-D day with an absolute minimum of accidents.

"If each person, motorist or pedestrian, can keep out of accidents for that one day, and then do the same on December 2, December 3 and for the rest of the year, the campaign will have paid off."

Nearly every Canadian community is joining in the drive and many public-spirited businesses and organizations are lending their full support, Mr. Ash said.

Results are to be compiled on a community level. If each community and region can cut its accidents down to zero, the national total for S-D Day will also remain at the hoped-for figure.

The Highway Safety Conference figures that for S-D Day, zero is par.

WHY NOT A REAL HEALTH PLAN?

Now that the Dominion-Provincial Conference is over and the representatives of the several governments have returned to their capitals without endorsing Mr. Frost's suggestion for a National Health Plan, would this not be a good time to give serious study to the possibility of a real health plan,—that is a plan to improve the health of the people, not merely to pay their doctor and hospital bills when they are sick?

A health plan that would teach the citizens the laws of health and impress them with the importance of observing those laws in their everyday lives would do more to improve the health of the nation than any of the plans for making the people pay each other's bills when they are sick; and it would cost only a small fraction of the 750 million dollars which some politicians would like to spend.—The Rural Scene.

THE WEATHER

Everybody talks about the weather but nobody does anything about it. Radio announcers do a lot of guessing, almanacs do some long range predictions, Indians and muskrats don't agree, and even our own weather forecaster is flabbergasted about how the moon is looking these nights. Out at Vancouver the weatherman has gone back fifty years to predict the kind of weather there'll be for the Grey Cup game on Saturday. He says there may be a little rain, perhaps some fog, no flood, perhaps a little sunshine, but is certain there won't be any thirty below weather. Whether the Eskimos or Alouettes win, there'll be a hot time at the coast come November 26.

P.S.—We are assured of a white Christmas!!

Grant MacEwan, former dean of agriculture at the University of Manitoba, and now Member of Provincial Legislature for Calgary, was born in 1902, from pioneer parents who farmed north of Brandon, Manitoba, and at Melfort, Sask. From the home farm in the West, he attended the Ontario Agricultural College, graduating in 1926. Later, he did post-graduate work in science at the Iowa State College.

For some years following, Grant MacEwan held senior position with the University of Saskatchewan and the University of Manitoba and became widely known across Canada for his public service, especially in the fields of writing, lecturing and in the conduct of fairs and exhibitions.

At present he is president of the Men's Canadian Club of Calgary, chairman of the Agricultural Bureau of the Calgary Chamber of Commerce, Honorary President of the Western Canada Fair Association of Canada, vice-chairman of the Western Development Museum, Alderman in the City of Calgary and MLA for that city.

As an author, Mr. MacEwan has been a regular contributor to various magazines and has seen seven of his books published; of the seven, four were technical books concerning agricultural subjects and the remaining three have had to do with the history and development of Western Canada. Lice on Cattle

With all the prospects of a long, cold winter ahead, stockmen should be on the lookout for anything which might be hard on cattle. One of the causes of cattle doing poorly and losing weight is lice. Signs of these are, cattle scratching or rubbing, loss of hair or excess scurf in the hair, particularly around the head and neck. It is too cold now to spray for lice but a dust is just as effective but harder to apply.

There are many products which will do an effective job of louse control, and of the rotenone or pyrethrum compounds can be used on all animals. Some chemicals, such as the chlorinated hydrocarbons like DDT, lindane or chlordane should not be used on dairy cows or young calves or animals which will be slaughtered within a month.

One important thing is to read carefully and follow exactly the directions and instructions which come with the product being used.

Lossers in the Chicken House

Hens which are not laying are expensive to keep around. A regular routine of culling should be carried on at all times to get rid of the non-layers and keep egg production up. If you aren't sure what to look for when going through your flock, drop into my office and pick up a circular on selecting and culling of chickens.

Care of House Plants

At this time of year, with extra heat being used, the air in many houses gets so dry that plants do not do well. (It isn't too good for people, either.) Anything which can be done to increase the humidity will help this. Moving the plants closer to a window will offset the reduced natural light in the winter time. An application of some plant food, either in tablet or liquid form, is useful now and in the summer, just follow the directions for the product you buy.

Aphids or plant lice can easily be controlled by dusting or spraying with something such as Malathion, DDT, Derris Dust etc.

A period of 10 minutes per day, from which pupils may be excused by special permission, is permitted for religious exercises during school hours. The new regulations are intended to clarify the activities to be followed during the period.

In grades 1 to 4 it is now obligatory for teachers to read from the Bible itself at least once a week and more often if desired. Reading from prescribed Bible passages is obligatory in Grades 5 and 6 at least three times a week.

On remaining days of the week, reading from either of two volumes of Bible stories has been authorized for Grades 1 to 4 inclusive. The authorized volumes are Hurlbut's "Story of the Bible" and Schoolcraft's "Marian's Big Book of Bible Stories". Scripture may be taken from the authorized English version, the Douay version or the revised standard version of the Bible.

Previously, Hurlbut's "Story of the Bible" was the sole authorized reading for Grades 1 to 4 and scripture reading five days a week was prescribed for Grades 5 and 6. Both scripture and Bible stories must be read without note or comment.

Without comment in addition to the reading, the religious period is required to include a hymn and, whenever possible, a prayer.

No change has been made in the religious exercises of Grades 7 to 12, which will continue to have scripture readings five days a week.

Teachers in rural schools, who often have several grades in one classroom, are required to read at least one scripture selection a week from passages prescribed for Grades 1 to 4 and at least one selection a week from passages prescribed for Grades 5 and 6.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY

I COVER THE POLICE COURTS

—By SAMUEL CAMPBELL

WHEN I opened the door of my room and flipped on the light switch, I got a glimpse of the fat man sitting in a chair. He must have had a seizure on the gun because I only saw two bright flashes. And then I sank to my knees. Somewhere in the back of my mind I was fondly wishing I had stuck to short story writing and kept my nose out of this screwy business. I cover the police courts. Yeah! Right now I'm covering six feet of this hospital bed.

It all began when the journalist a bug bit me. I thought I could write. So I went to the city editor of the newspaper and asked for a job. He assigned me to the police beat. I've been on it three years. And brother, if you're seriously thinking about writing as a career . . . but that's all beside the point. The character you want to know about is the fat man and why he's not me for target practice.

On the morning of the day I was shot, I went to cover a narcotics story. For a while it was just routine stuff officers of the morality squad had caught the accused, a Jap-Canadian named Surika, hiding $50,000 worth of opium in the rafters of his garage. But the trial didn't go on. The fat man, Arthur Poole, acting on behalf of Surika, asked for an adjournment of one week. He said he wanted time to get Surika a proper counsel and an interpreter. The court granted the adjournment and freed Surika on $3,000 bail . . . which the fat man paid. Then they both left together.

I wrote a rather unusual about that. It happens every day in the courts. So I wrote the story up and went on with the next job. By noon hour I had quite forgotten the fat man and Surika until I was going down the city hall steps to lunch.

Suddenly the fat man came out of an alcove where he had been waiting for at least two hours, threw away his cigarette, coughed nervously and lumbered over to meet me. I saw he had something in his hand . . . money. I presumed. That was the usual approach. They say what respectable citizens they are and what a disgrace it would be to have their names appearing in a newspaper story—especially a case like this. Well, that's exactly what Mr. Poole did. And I brushed him off the same as the rest.

In the late afternoon, things were pretty slack. I got thinking again about the fat man and the Jap. There might be a human interest story somewhere in this set-up, so I looked up Surika's address and started out.

He lived in a poor section of the suburbs in a wartime house. His history showed that he drank heavily and that his wife had left him about a year ago. No mention was made of the fat man or how he got tied up with him.

BOZO

When I got there, it was raining slightly and getting dark fast. Just as I alighted from the rear door of the bus, I could have sworn I saw Poole getting on the front door. The color of his trench coat was turned up, and he was carrying a parcel . . . something wrapped up in newspapers. The bus pulled away quickly and I didn't get much of a look.

I went up to Surika's front door and rang the bell. No answer. "He must be around somewhere," I thought to myself. "If Poole just left a few minutes ago." I went around to the side door. No luck there. Then I happened to glance down the yard towards the garage. There was no light on, but one door was slightly ajar, and I heard a car engine idling quietly.

"Surika! Surika!" I called out twice, but there was no answer. When I went in, I found out why. Surika was sitting in the driver's seat, steering wheel . . . dead. All the doors and windows were closed up tight. It looked like another of those carbon monoxide "accidents". And it might have passed for one if I hadn't seen the fat man leaving in such a hurry.

I broke a window in Surika's kitchen and got inside to a phone. I told the police where I was, what had happened, and who I had seen leaving a bus. Then I phoned in my story to the paper and went home.

I think this is where you came in. Remember the two flashes and the silence on the gun? I dropped to the floor like a sheet of lead. The first slug went past me; the second grazed my left temple and knocked me out cold. But the fat man didn't get away. For even while I was on my way home he was on my way home. He had secured a lead on him. They talked him to my apartment and came in just behind me. He tried to shoot it out, but he missed.

Just before he died, he signed a confession stating that he was the chief of the dope ring. Surika was only a small-time agent. That afternoon, he offered a number of used cars for a price of $9.85. Some of these cars were only eight years old. All were guaranteed by the seller to be in good running order.

How many things can you name of which the price hasn't been raised in 50 years? Offhand I can think of only one. That is the fare on the Staten Island ferry to New York City, which is still five cents. That is America's greatest travel bargain, five-and-a-half miles for a nickel. A beautiful ride, too. Furthermore, you always get a seat. The Staten Island commuters are among the few people in the U.S. who find their journey to and from work a pleasure.

"GALILEO OF A FIGURE"—Sheer delight over a brother's first catch is expressed in toothy grin of the lad, center, as he shows off "Specs" fish to the lad at right. Once-in-a-boyhood moment was captured near a lake in Hyde Park, London.

Parlor organ was symbol of gracious living in bygone era

Few families were more typical of gracious living 40 or 50 years ago than the parlor organ. Later it was replaced by the piano. Each had the place in family esteem that the television set has today.

A parlor organ was not easy to play to begin with; it had to be pumped. Much earlier in the game, someone in the family had to learn how to do it. The instrument was harder to learn than a piano, for there were many different stops. The old-fashioned organ represented a vastly greater investment of time and effort in home entertainment than most people are willing to make now. Some actual cost of the organ was something important in those days of small incomes. In addition the pleasure it gave had to be purchased with human energy and skill.

But lots of people were willing to put the time and effort into music. Many more people could sing, at least passably well. The piano, during the first few decades of its general introduction into homes, was even more popular than the organ. Easier to play, its music was also quieter tempo and easier to sing to. Many boys and girls, who are now men and women, took piano lessons. Many boys and girls of today still do so.

But there has been a great change in the general habit of piano playing. It has become more of a solo instrument, rather than a centre about which the family and its visitors, gathered for a song. Now someone turns on a switch.

Now someone turns on a switch.

Nineteen fleets make ready for Antarctic whaling expedition

Nineteen whaling fleets from half a dozen countries are getting ready for the new Antarctic summer catching season, which promises to be one of the shortest and most competitive in whale oil history, according to a Reuters report from Capetown, South Africa.

The International Whaling Commission has set a limit of 15,000 blue whale units—a whale oil measurement—in next season's haul. This limit was ordered to check the diminishing supply of whales.

Blue whale units are the mathematics of Antarctic whaling expeditions. One unit represents a blue whale or two-fin whales or 2½ humpbacked whales. All fleets report their catches from day to day to the international authority by radio and the season ends the moment the seasonal limit has been caught.

Fast vessels
Britain, Norway, Holland, Japan, Russia and South Africa will be competing this season. The Greenland whaling fleet, sailing under the flag of Panama, also will be there.

Norway's expedition will be equipped this year with 100 diesel catchers, the fast, trawler-like little vessels which scout the whale packs, harpoon them and deliver them to their escorting factory ships for oil extraction.

With a lower limit set on this season's catch, every fleet will be out to take as many whales as it can find as fast as possible when the killing season opens in January. The 1960 season lasted from January 27 to March 18. More catchers—chasing fewer whales—probably will cut the coming season shorter still.

Mechanical aids
Every season new mechanical aids are added to help whaling masters and gunners do their jobs faster. Electronic spotters are to be used this season by British and Norwegian fleets. Three factory ships will carry spotter helicopters to scout the whales. Several British catchers will carry electric harpoons for "instant death" killings as well as the standard explosive harpoons.

At this year's meeting in Moscow of the International Whaling Commission, Norway proposed that an independent observer of another nationality should travel in factory ships to see that there were no infringements of whaling regulations. There was no time for this to be approved for the present season, but independent observers are expected to join the fleets of the 1960-61 season.

Elderly couple find security in cave life

An elderly couple and their daughter in Hildesheim, Germany, recently boasted that in a trouble world, they had found incomparable security.

Their formula is to revert to the cave man era and eat only fruit and vegetables. Seventy-three-year-old Adolph Ellerbrook said that he, his wife and their daughter, Ute, have achieved immunity to War (his cave has a cellar which he is convinced is hydrogen-bomb proof).

Taxes (he neither owns, earns nor needs anything taxable). Unemployment (Ellerbrook has no job and is convinced he will never need one).

Hunger and thirst. (On the heights of the mountain crest where he has dug out his cave home, Ellerbrook has built a large reservoir which catches enough rain water to wet down his garden during dry spells.

Drinking water is obtained from a near-by spring, and just in case this should go dry, Ellerbrook is digging a 70-foot well.

Ellerbrook recounted that he set out to find security in a cave in 1932, and was far enough advanced with his work when World War II came to test his plans against Allied bombers. No bombs ever fell close to the isolated retreat.

Only a vegetarian can follow his system for security, Ellerbrook insisted. "None of us has ever seen a dead animal. We have never needed medical attention, vaccinations or shots, or any kind of medicine. Our medicine is the raw fruit and vegetables we eat."

The principle of 4-H Club Work is to learn to do "by doing" and each boy or girl is personally responsible for a project in farming or homemaking which he or she carries out on the home farm.

Not talking to moose any more

Charlie Charlebois of Montreal says he's not going to try talking to a Newfoundland moose any more, they're too unfriendly.

The 37-year-old floor sander said he was driving through central Newfoundland when a moose ambled across the road.

Charlie figured he was a friendly fellow, so got out to pet the moose and called "here boy."

The moose came on with a snort and, just as Charlie jumped back into the car, crashed head-on and knocked the vehicle 15 yards.

The moose took one satisfied look at the crumpled grill, shook his head and trotted back into the woods.

"I'm frightened yet," reported Charlie. "I'll never try to take a moose again."
